For You Newcomers In Town!!

Rawhide - In History and Legend

History has never recorded a social phenomenon quite like the mass migration that filled the American West with cities, towns and hamlets. The excitement of that dramatic time in history continues to live on right here in Rawhide. In our town, the west is still wild.

The western frontier town of Rawhide is situated in the Gila River Indian community. The history of this vast, majestic area of the Sonoran Desert and its people dates back to ancient times when the Huhukam civilization was thriving here along side the Gila River.

Later, descendants of the Huhukam, the Pima as they were called by the Spanish Explorers, designed an elaborate agricultural system throughout their many villages by diverting the waters of the Gila River into canals that extended for miles into fields of crops. In their own language they were the Akimel O'othom, or River People. The O'othom were a peaceful group and eventually welcomed the Pee Posh, also known as the Maricopa, as they arrived to the valley seeking refuge from internal warfare. The Pee Posh migrated to the west end of the Gila River after agreeing to three items. One, they would fight the same wars with the Pima against the Apaches, two they would follow the leadership of Pima Chiefs and three, they would live in peace. The two have coexisted in this area ever since.

LOCAL ATTRACTIONS PROVE POPULAR WITH VISITORS

Beyond the extraordinary western fare of the Rawhide Steakhouse & Saloon, Rawhide has a special brand of western entertainment that captures the imagination of visitors from all over the world. The little red schoolhouse is available for private birthday parties. A ride on the train or stagecoach will be never be forgotten, while the shooting gallery provides hours of fun for the young-uns'. And the camel rides are really unique!

Kids of all ages love to pan for gold, rock climb and watch award-winning stunt shows at the Six Gun Theater. Throughout town, folks discover authentic western specialty shops offering a fine collection of memorabilia, western wear and souvenirs for those back home.

In addition, it's not uncommon for visitors to get involved in some kind of local commotion with Rawhide's more colorful characters on Main Street.

Arrest a Guest

The mayor has now established a new Arrest-A-Guest ordinance allowing deputies to issue warrants and arrest friends and family members in return for a small "donation" to the sheriff's retirement fund. The town jail, smack dab in the middle of Rawhide, has become a lively location with several arrests every evening. They'll even take yer' picture.

Have an Affair at Rawhide

Don't settle for some phony baloney, flim-flam, fancy pants, high falutin' western backdrop for your next company event. Plan a real boot stompin' adventure in the Old West at Rawhide. Set on 100 acres of beautiful desert, Rawhide's complete 1880's Western Town takes your guests back in time to the legendary days of cowboys and gun-slingers.

Rawhide features eight private party locations, including scenic outdoor cookouts, indoor meetin' and eatin' rooms and even a 52,000 sq. ft. heated pavilion which guarantees yer crew will have plenty of open range to spread out. Matter of fact, Rawhide can handle any size party from 50 to 10,000 and we have enough great western entertainment to please yer fussiest cowpoke. Heck, you can even have your own private rodeo right here at Rawhide. Treat your group to a real adventure in the Old West. Saddle up and head out to Rawhide at Wild Horse Pass. Give us a call, and we'll show you how the West was fun!
